Americans Who Land to Get Water Find Remains of Two Men Dressed in Army Uniforms and With Aviation Insignia in Their Pockets Buried on Beach of Bay of Los Angeles, September 23.

FLIERS DISAPPEARED OVER SIX WEEKS AGO

YOGALES, Arizona, October 2.—The bodies of two men dressed in American Army uniforms and with insignia of the aviation corps in their pockets, found buried on the beach of the bay of Los Angeles, Lower California, about 300 miles south of San Diego, are believed to be those of Lieutenant Frederick B. Waterhouse and Lieutenant Cecil H. Connelly, according to a report made to military authorities today, by Joe Allen Richards of Chicago, upon his arrival from Guaymas, Mexico.

Lieutenants Waterhouse and Connelly disappeared six weeks ago while on border patrol duty between Yuma, Arizona, and San Diego.

According to Richards, the bodies were found by himself and William Rose, both Americans, when they landed on the bay of Los Angeles, September 23, to get water.

STOWAWAY HAD HER PICTURE TAKEN WITH AIR LATER PASSENGERS

A picture of the Lawson Air liner appearing in one of the pictorial weeklies shows the passengers when it arrived at Bolling Field, Washington, D. C. Among them is the young woman who, it was stated, when the machine made a forced landing near Broad Ford last Thursday, was a stowaway.

Apparently the "stowaway" appeared at every stopping place and occupied a regular seat with the other occupants of the cabin. Or else somebody was "kidded" when the plane visited Connellsville.

AFTER STREET WOMEN

Three Arrested in 24 Hours as Result of Crusade.

The police have started carrying out the orders of Acting Mayor Hoover and Chief Bowers to rid the city of all street walkers and undesirable. As a result of the order, Mattie Pike was arrested yesterday afternoon on Arch street at 2:30 P. M., making the third arrested on this charge in 24 hours. She was fined $5.

No forfeits will be accepted from persons arrested on this charge from now on. They must appear for a hearing.

A new interpretation has been placed on the term "street walking" which will mean that characters of known indecent or immoral character will not find it so easy a matter to get away with their traffic. Chief Bowers insists that he is going to rid the city of undesirable females, many of whom are recent arrivals, and once the city is freed of these characters he will see that they do not return.

LUNCH FOR SOLDIERS

Canteen Committee of Red Cross Serves Nearly 500 Food for West.

Nearly 500 soldiers, members of an artillery training corps of the Motor Transport Service, were served lunch this morning at the Baltimore & Ohio depot while on their way from Camp Holabird, Md., to Camp Grant, Ill., from which place they are destined for Honolulu. In all there were three officers and 487 enlisted men, gathered from all sections of the country from Maine to California.

The canteen committee of the Red Cross received short notice, a little more than a half hour, of the coming of the train but an ample supply of hot coffee, pie, apples, tri-a-pops and cigars had been assembled at the station when the train of 12 coaches rolled in about 10 o'clock. The men detained and were lined up in single file to receive the treat.

BIDS FOR 8½ MILES OF THE FARMINGTON ROAD ARE TO BE OPENED BY STATE, OCTOBER 31

HARRISBURG, October 2.—State Treasurer H. M. Kephart, who has been closely following up the progress of the highway department plans for Fayette county, and particularly those in the near vicinity of Connellsville, has been advised by the State Highway Department that advertisements for bids for the one-mile and a half link needed to close up the "Limestone Hill" Vanderbilt road are now in the mails to the newspapers authorized to publish them.

Bids will be opened October 31 for the construction of three and one-half miles on the Connellsville end and of five miles on the Farmington end of the Connellsville-to-Farmington road, or a total of eight and one-half miles which is to form this year's part of the work on this very important public improvement.

The decision to commence work on both ends of this road this year will be an agreeable surprise to the friends of the undertaking, it having been the general impression that only the three and one-half miles out of Connellsville toward Normalville would be contracted at this time. That work is to be pushed from both ends the Connellsville-to-Farmington boosters have the hustling State Treasurer to thank.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—King Albert of Belgium, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Leopold, who came to America to personally express their gratitude for the aid extended by a generous nation to their martyred country, received a noisy welcome to New York when aroused at dawn by the firing of salutes as the transport George Washington steamed past the outer harbor forts.

It was a truly American welcome such as has greeted returning heroes from France since the cessation of hostilities.

AGREEMENT REACHED ON PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Breaking a three weeks' deadlock Senate and House conferees reached an agreement late yesterday on the prohibition enforcement bill. Quick approval of the conferees report is expected by the President early next week.

The bill, which establishes one-half of 1 per cent as the maximum alcoholic content of beverages, has passed both houses. The conferees report will be sent first to the Senate, where it will be reported Friday.

The bill contains no fundamental changes in its plan for strict enforcement, both of war-time and constitutional prohibition.

The principal "liberal" amendment of the Senate, permitting home manufacture and consumption of cider and light wines, was approved. The bill provides that the government must bear the "burden of proof" in prosecuting those selling beverages by showing that the beverages concerned contained more than the alcoholic limit of one-half per cent. Manufacturers must bear the burden of proof that their products contained alcohol only within the amount prescribed.

No change was made in the provisions which would allow a man to consume in his own home liquor acquired before the law goes into effect. The conferees struck out the House amendment, requiring physical examinations by physicians of patients before issuance of prescriptions for intoxicating beverages.

For expenses in enforcing the bill the conferees reduced the Senate appropriation of $13,500,000 to $12,000,000.

The bill prohibits advertisement of intoxicants or of formulas or contrivances for their manufacture.

Regarding the exemption from seizure of intoxicants stored in homes, the bill includes apartments and hotel rooms.

By Associated Press.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

Among School Children To Be Carefully Guarded Against.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 2.—Dr. Thomas K. Finegan, state superintendent of public instruction, has sent notices to all boards of school directors, on how to control and prevent communicable diseases, with orders that they be enforced.

The suggestions outline sanitation of schoolrooms, duties of the parent in allowing sick children to attend schools and functions of the trustee officers in hunting down all cases of absence in order to learn where the hidden cases of communicable diseases might be. Special stress is laid upon the importance of reporting any sickness of school children.

HIGH AVERAGE IN D. T. H. S.

Daily Attendance First Month 221 Out of Total of 235 Students.

An average daily enrollment of 221 was recorded in the Dunbar township high school at Leisenring for the first month, ending on Monday of this week, according to figures given out by Principal W. E. Tidball. The total enrollment for the month was 232.

The term began on Monday but owing to the dismissal of the school for a day during the Dawson fair the month was pushed into the fifth week. The attendance is considerably larger than last year.

Reports from Supervising Principal R. K. Smith indicate that the eighth grades throughout the township are large this year, arguing well for the high school next term.

$15 STRAIGHT PER QUART FOR STRAIGHT STUFF; NO QUANTITY CUT RATES

A citizen with a Sahara breath and parched tongue, as the outward visible signs of an inward and consuming thirst, after diligent inquiry as to where he could procure an effective quencher, was directed by another better informed citizen to go to a certain establishment located in Meadow lane, south of Crawford avenue, where, it is alleged, an ample supply is at all times available.

Being apprised that the price was $15.00 per quart, he attempted to strike a bargain by offering $20.00 for two quarts.

"Notin' doin', boss," was the proprietor's curt rejoinder. "My price is $15.00 straight for de straight stuff."

Not having the $30.00 at hand the customer was obliged to conclude the transaction for a single quart at the price which had been stated in plain language and figures.

EXPLAINS TRAU AFFAIR

Admiral Knapp Says U. S. Action Prevented Bloodshed.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Intervention by the American naval forces at Trau, Dalmatia, prevented bloodshed which would perhaps have resulted in a state of actual war between Italy and Jugoslavia, according to a report from Admiral Knapp, commanding American naval forces in European waters, transmitted to the Senate today by Secretary Daniels.

American sailors were not landed, Admiral Knapp said, until after American and Italian officers who had been sent to Trau had induced the Italian raiders to withdraw after they had surprised and captured the small Serbian garrison. One Italian officer and three men were left behind and the American bluejackets were sent ashore to protect them and police the town until Serbian troops could arrive, the admiral said.

P. R. R. EXPRESS WRECKED

Crashes Into Freight Smashup Near Philadelphia.

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—The Metropolitan express on the Pennsylvania railroad, which left Chicago yesterday morning for New York, was partially wrecked 15 miles west of Philadelphia this morning. A west-bound freight train of 100 cars was derailed on sharp curve and the wreckage of 20 cars piled high. In less than three minutes the express crashed into it.

Rain was falling and there was a fog. The engineer saw the wreck too late to avert disaster. After applying the brakes he and his fireman jumped. Both were hurt.

The engine, baggage car and four sleepers were thrown off the track. The dining car and four other sleepers remained on the rails. No passengers were injured but all received a severe shaking up.

GETS WRONG GRIP

Greensburg Woman's Worth $10,000; Old Clothes in One She Receives.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Mrs. Margaret W. Brown, of Greensburg, Pa., yesterday called on the police to find a man with whom she unwittingly exchanged grips in the Pennsylvania station here. Her grip, she says contained $10,000 in money, guns and stocks. His contained collars, shirts and socks.

Mrs. Brown said she checked her grip at a stand in the station and was presented with the missing stranger's grip when she surrendered her check. The checking clerk regretfully announced he had given Mrs. Brown's grip to a "young man" who called with a check. The grips looked alike he added and he got them "slightly mixed."

COMMERCIALIZED EVANGELISM IS BISHOP'S TARGET

Says Better Results Can Be Obtained If Ministers Will Work and Pray.

CONNELLVILLE IS PRAISED

Local Methodist Episcopal Church and Its Pastor Commended in the Report of Dr. J. J. Hill, Superintendent-out of the McKeesport District.

Commercialized evangelism was roundly scored by Bishop Joseph P. Barry of Philadelphia at the opening this morning of the second day's session of the Methodist Episcopal church in Uniontown. Better and more lasting results can be secured, the bishop declared, if the ministers of the conference will take their work more to heart and pray as well as work in the interest of saving souls.

Better than the commercialized work of the professional evangelist is the method of making daily additions to the church after the manner indicated in Holy Writ, the bishop said. The "commercial" evangelist, Bishop Barry said, comes into a community bent on conducting a short campaign, aiming at great numbers of converts, secured in a systematic manner. The sums carried out by these evangelists, the bishop declared, could be used by the home minister to much better advantage in furthering the work of the congregation.

The work of the Connellsville congregation and its pastor, Rev. G. L. Richardson was praised in a report by Dr. J. J. Hill, superintendent of the McKeesport district. The superintendent laid special stress on the efforts of the pastor toward securing a new edifice for this city.

Mrs. Sarah B. Cochran of Dawson was referred to as "the grand woman of the district." Mrs. Cochran, Dr. Hill said, has pledged hearty support of the work in Connellsville, including a new church, and has done much for the Dawson church and has greater aid in store for the coming year.

The circuit rider of the days of yore is not extinct in the Pittsburgh conference, Dr. Hill said. Over in Somerset county there is one of these old-time ministers-of-the-gospel. He is Rev. H. G. Trimmer. Rev. Trimmer serves Berlin, Somerset and a number of other churches in that section. He rides horseback from place to place. The superintendent spoke highly of the work of Rev. Trimmer.

The Pittsburgh conference suffered heavily from the influenza epidemic last fall, according to a report made by Dr. Lockard of Pittsburgh.

Dr. R. P. Andrews of Sharnsburg Continued on Page Two.

MINTYRE CASE WITH JURY

Suit Over Land Taken From Welkers by P. R. R. Called for Trial.

The action of Martin McIntyre against the West Penn Railways company for $25,000 damages for loss of part of his foot under the wheels of a trolley car in Connellsville was given to a jury in Uniontown at 10 o'clock today. Testimony was completed yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Much of the evidence was contradictory. McIntyre claimed he was run down by a car. The defense contended he was injured in attempting to board a moving car.

Taking of testimony was begun this morning before Judge E. H. Reppert in the case of Sabina Walker, Herman O. Welker and Frank Welker of Connellsville against the Pennsylvania Railroad company, a dispute over the value of land condemned by the company for a siding between Fayette and Peach streets, near the depot. After the jury had been secured yesterday it came to Connellsville to view the premises. The suit is an appeal from the award of P. D. Munson, W. S. McCloy and J. V. E. Ellis. The record has been amended to substitute John Welker and Frank P. Welker, executors, for Sabina Walker, who has since died.

BOYS IN TROUBLE

Three Arrested for Attempting to Defraud City Merchants.

Three boys, Thomas O'Donnell, James Johnson and ———— Seals, were arrested this morning by Constable J. W. Mitchell on charges of obtaining money and attempting to obtain more under false pretense. The scheme of the boys, which worked in a case or two, it is said, was to forge notes from heads of families to merchants with whom the families deal. One found in the possession of the prisoners read:

"Please send $5 by boy as I need it. Adam Binner."

Adam Binner is a Baltimore & Ohio engineer, the officer was informed, and he wrote no such note. They failed to get the money on this but had made good on one for $2. An attempt was made also to secure a $5 loan.

At the Theatres

THE SOIXON.

"THE GIRL FROM OUTSIDE." Played to a big audience last night and will be repeated tonight. The influence of a good woman on evil characters is an old story, tale and scenario. It began in the dim mysterious ages and continues unabated because it is a true, authentic influence. The danger is that in presenting it, banalities both of spirit and of action will perforce emanate from the author. But Rex Beach in "The Girl From Outside," has skillfully drawn the line just when necessary so that his theme, despite its antiquity, has a freshness and power all its own. June, the "girl from outside," lands in the rough town of Noma in the gold-seeking days. She has been orphaned on the voyage to the port. Immediately on her entrance on the scene she is caught up in a destiny which involves a gang of crooks and also Denton, a gambler and crook who rules Noma. "The Curly Kid," the leader of the gang, falls in love with her, and it is not long before all the others do likewise. Denton, however, remains unchanged, and the conflict between the elemental forces of good and evil is intensified by the clash between "the curly kid" and his loyal henchmen and the "boss."

Jiffy-Jell

10 Flavors, at Your Grocer's
2 Packages for 25 Cents

There is no compromise possible and Mr. Beach attempts none; his tale works out with the death both of the reformed gangster and the gambler. June, however, finds her happiness in the love of a man who has done much for her. "The Girl From Outside" is an artistic picture; it has atmosphere, action, logic and beauty.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"HIS FATHER'S WIFE."—The new World feature in which June Elvidge is starred, supported by Sam Hardy. This is something distinctly new in the line of picture plays, dealing with a situation which is becoming more frequent every day.

Old man Winthrop marries his secretary. She has been very kind and attentive to him while his son is in France and hearing that there has been some unpleasant talk about the two of them, she wants to leave. To keep her with him he marries her. Soon after Winthrop dies. His son returns just in time to be with him when death comes.

This leaves the young widow and the son who is some years her senior together.

The son is inclined to believe that the young girl had designs on his father's fortune. Eventually he falls in love with her himself and the story ends happily.

June Elvidge plays the young girl with all her usual charm while Sam Hardy handles the part of the young man with that cheerful air that makes his work so popular.

Is there a Scientist in Your Laundry?

Do you work by "rule of thumb" while you labor with your family washing? Does your laundress still obey only her own whims, or does she wash your clothes in the way that trained investigators have found to be best?

For there is a haphazard and an exact method of washing.

In our laundry we leave nothing to chance. We retain a scientist on our staff. With his help we have made our methods, not approximately, but exactly right.

From him we have learned just how warm the water should be for the various varieties of fabrics. He has told us how much and the kinds of soap to use, and why. The use of ammonias and bleaches is still common with many housewives and laundresses. Science has taught us how to do without them.

Other of our cleansing processes have been, similarly improved and refined.

Instead of the old-time "hit-or-miss" methods of the laundress, we wash according to formulas that many experiments have taught us are best.

These are the methods we employ when our driver brings us your family bundle.

If by chance you are one of those who have not yet taken advantage of our superior laundering system, telephone us and our driver will call for your washing.

THURSDAY EVENING, OCT. 2, 1914.

BOOTLEGGING.

Acting Mayor Hoover's efforts to put a stop to bootlegging and other forms of illegal liquor selling should have the interested support and cooperation of all good citizens.

That Conneltsville is acquiring the reputation of being a place where it is comparatively easy to obtain whisky
—and this condition is drawing patronage from neighboring towns—is detracting rather than adding to the city's credit to permit the sale of other forms of law violation to go on.

The presence on the streets of inveterated men and the increase in the number of arrests for drunkenness, is undeniable proof that liquor is being sold to a very considerable number of persons. To discover by whom it is being sold ought not to be a very difficult task, it is set about in the proper way and with a determination to ferret out the offenders.

Among persons informed as to conditions there are many who can be obtained merely upon the payment of the price and that the dispenser are making the business the means of a very lucrative livelihood.

Citizens having a definite knowledge of the whereabouts of operation of the bootleg joints or the identity of those selling liquor from a pocket suitcases in the alleys or other secluded places or anywhere indoors or outside should realize it as their obligation to give information to the officers that will lead to breaking up the practice.
Failure to do so will be no less than aiding and abetting the violators of the law. At the same time the officers, if aware of their duties and really concerned about requiring observance of the law, ought to have no very great difficulty in accumulating evidence on their own account.

If the efforts to be made do not result in a repression on the traffic the conclusion of the public will be that somebody has failed in their duty.

THE KIND OF DOCTRINE AMERIC-ANS SHOULD PREACH.

That was wholesome American doctrine Judge Buffington stated in the Philadelphia naturalization court the other day when he roundly denounced men of the type represented by Syndicalist Foster.

It is the kind of Americanism we need more to have uttered from the bench, in the pulpit, in the schools, in the press and wherever men congregate, and most of all we need to have it implanted in the minds, hearts and consciences of men in their daily association and duties as citizens.

There is no greater truth at the present moment than that declared by Judge Buffington when he said that "Foster is the type of man who is causing all this unrest among the foreign-born not only of this state, but of the country."

Left to himself the average foreigner is not disposed to create disturbed conditions, but remembering the tyranny and oppression to which he was subject in his native land, he is quickly susceptible to influence such as the parlor Bolsheviks in America bring to bear upon him when seeking his support in a movement, like that being exploited by Foster.

Such a man therefore becomes, as Judge Buffington has courageously said, "a most dangerous leader and a dangerous domestic enemy." Against such a red blooded American justice very wisely, and with intense patriotism, counseled the embryo citizens to beware. The man who tells men who no government is better than any sort of government and the judge, "the man who preaches anarchy, and the man who is always kicking about the government is a domestic enemy and you should avoid him. If he doesn't like this country or the way it is governed he ought to go a passport and get out of it."

This is the kind of doctrine every American who is concerned about the preservation of our free institutions should practice as well as preach.

SOLDIERS' BONDS PLANS.

There is sound common sense in the suggestion of the American Legion that Congress take action on all proposed soldiers' bond bills. Until the executive men have themselves considered the subject and agreed upon a recommendation.

A multiplicity of plans have been proposed by members of Congress some of which have suspicion that certain of our statesmen are more concerned about catering to the veterans than they are influenced by a desire to have the whole matter handled in accord with the temper and views of the soldiers themselves. Under the circumstances consideration of the proposition as a whole can be greatly helped and a wiser decision reached if action be delayed until the wishes of the men are known.

There has been a strong sentiment throughout the country in favor of a more substantial recognition being given the men who served their country in its hour of need no less than a feeling that the United States cannot afford to be, and should not be, less generous and appreciative than other nations forming the Allied group during the war. This sentiment and feeling has not been fostered by the returned soldiers, who in the main have been averse to discussing the subject. It is among civilians generally that the impression has steadily grown that the least the government can do is to provide a way or means whereby to more adequately compensate the men for the sacrifices they made and to serve as a more complete measure of a nation's gratitude.
But the men themselves should first have the privilege of indicating their wishes in the matter.

With the bootleggers adhering firmly to last prices what hope has the helpless consumer of bringing down the cost of liquoring up?

Turning the clock back as several persons did yesterday morning was not so much an evidence of slowminded-ness as it was of a desire to be right with the times.

And the coke region first aid and rescue teams showed em how it was done straight.

proud lynching record.

Trades Unionism Must Get Rid of the "Borers"

Philadelphia Ledger.

Lloyd George is so amazed at inexplicable unionism and the military tactics of surprise in the big British railroad strike no notice having been given, that he roundly brands it as
"this anarchic conspiracy." He says:

"It has convinced me that it is not a strike for wages or better conditions. The government has reason to believe it has been engineered for some time by a small but active body of men who have wrongfully and unjustly to exploit the labor organizations of this country for subversive ends."

That has a very home-like sound
What is this we have been reading about Mr. Foster's policy of "boring from within," by which he meant that the Syndicalists and I. W. W. should first gain control of the American Federation of Labor and then through this organization work for the "revolution?" The British premier seems to think that the leaders of the railway strike, which has abruptly and brutally tripped up the British people on their painful journey up out of the Slough of Despond and away from the dizzy precipice of bankruptcy have been "boring from within."

Trade unionism is on trial today on both sides of the Atlantic as never before in its history. As a fight against organization for bettering the working and living conditions of the workingman, it has long ago justified itself and won a recognized place in the machinery of our economic and social life. It has a character, a reputation and an earnest and tremendous responsibility. It must defend that position. It cannot permit itself to be disembodied by "borers from within."
It cannot permit madmen and enemies of democracy to get hold of the levers of trade unionism for they will infallibly run a noble ship on the shoals of disaster.

Forces within trade unionism in both countries are fighting the wreckers. There is plenty of evidence of that. It may be and undoubtedly is disappointing to the sympathy-etic outsider that the leaders of the garrison this crowd of sanity do not more frankly and fully take the general public into their confidence. We feel that we could help them enormously and decisively in their patriotic fight. But, after all they are familiar with the battlefield and must be left to their strategy.

The important thing to say however is that the men who are trying to keep trade unionism democratic and faithful to its traditions and loyal to Americanism and the British spirit of fair play and Parliamentary government are the true friends of the workers and the sagacious leaders who will secure for them that larger share in the profits of production to which they aspire.

Probably none of the first ten men you might meet on the street could tell you what the steel employees are ostensibly striking to get. But every one of them—if they read the papers
—would know that a tant of Bohsevism had been discovered in the origins and inspiration of the strike and what he Senate committee is about to investigate is in reality the extent to which this poison has penetrated the labor movement as it functions in this structure.

Strike-itis—Everybody Has It

ACCIDENTS IN COAL MINES IN 1918 WERE
117 LESS THAN 1917

Total 2,379, of Which 1,294 Had Their Death From Cuts and Falls of Roofs—Ranched Deaths Next.

The Bureau of Mines has recently made public the statistics dealing with accidents in the mining industry during the year 1918. These show that the total number of deaths due to accidents in coal mines was 1,294 in 1918, which was a decrease of 117 as compared with 1917. This is a considerably low record in view of the fact that the slightly larger number of men employed last year and the further fact that an unusually large percentage of them were inexperienced, having been attracted to the mines by the abnormally high wages.

One life was lost last year for every 266,000 tons of coal mined. The most profitable causes of fatal accidents in 1918 as in earlier years were cuts and falls of roofs. Of the 1,294 killed 1,203 met their fate through this cause.

Accidents due to mine cars and locomotives killed 46 and 18 men were killed in haulage accidents on the surface. The number of deaths due to explosion of dust and gas decreased 64 per cent from 1917 and deaths due to electricity decreased 11 per cent.

The record of coal mine fatalities
since 1907 is as follows:

Year	Men Employed	Men Killed
1907	686,400	2,242
1908	699,478	2,445
1909	678,542	2,147
1910	725,000	2,827
1911	728,148	2,566
1912	722,666	1,119
1913	744,544	1,784
1914	746,155	2,143
1915	714,905	2,709
1916	720,731	2,206
1917	757,313	2,416
1918	760,000	2,379

LARGEST COAL CAR

Capacity 200,000 Pounds Loaded
Mine of Keystone Coal & Coke Co.
The largest car of coal ever loaded along the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad was made ready for shipment on the sidings of the Keystone Coal & Coke company's mine at Greensburg No. 1. The capacity of the car is 200,000 pounds and with the ten per cent increase over the market capacity it will carry 220,000 pounds. On the first trip only 200,- 000 pounds will be carried.
The car was recently turned out as an experiment from the Altoona shops. It has two trucks with three wheels each. The only cars anything near this capacity were recently built on the Norfolk & Western railroad.

GERMANS UNDERBID

American Coke Producers on Order from Consumers in Italy.

German coke-makers are taking coke orders from Italy which American producers say would have been placed in this country were it not for German competition. By reason of the low price of the German coke, American makers are able to quote prices which are exceedingly attractive compared with those in this country and in addition they have the advantage of a much lower freight rate.

What price actually was paid is not known, but it is known that considerable German coke has been sold to Italy.

DENIED COMPENSATION

For Death of Husband Under Court Order to Provide Support of Family.

Where a widow was not receiving with her husband at the time of his death and not in giving support from him even though an order of court had been made for the husband to contribute to family support she is not entitled to compensation for his death according to a ruling made by the state compensation board in Wilde in Pennsylvania railroad at Philadelphia case.

In the case the testimony shows that the wife left the husband probably for good cause and that although a municipal court order was made for him to contribute to her support he did so only for a time and then disappeared the efforts of the wife to locate him and enforce collection not being successful. The tribunal shows that she supported herself the wife.

First Month Closes With Attendance Record of 98 Per Cent; 1,206 Enrolled.

FOOTBALL TEAM IS IMPROVING

James A. Francy, Well Known Resident of Bessemer, Dies: Mount Pleasant Bowling Team to Play Scottdale at That Town Tonight.

Special to The Courier.

MT. PLEASANT, Oct. 2.—James A. Francy, a well known resident of Bessemer, died at his home there yesterday. Requiem high mass will be celebrated at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock on Friday morning and interment will follow in the St. Joseph cemetery. Mr. Francy leaves a wife and grown family.

To Play Scottdale.

The Mt. Pleasant Bowling team will play Scottdale at Scottdale this evening and Friday evening will meet Erverson at Mt. Pleasant.

George Graham, manager of the Mt. Pleasant team, is desirous of securing games from teams in Westmoreland and Fayette counties and would like to hear from all persons interested at his address, 111 Main street, Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

Entertaining Missionary Society. Mrs. Vinnie Meckling entertained the Re-Union Presbyterian Missionary society at her Main street home yesterday afternoon. Following the program refreshments were served.

Big Enrollment.

Miss LaVada Fulmer, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Sylvester Fulmer, who is a sophomore in Findlay college writes that there is an unusually large attendance at the school this year. The school has added several departments and is offering the young people great inducements.

Successful Month.

The Mt. Pleasant public schools have closed a very successful month's work. The enrollment for the first month was 612 boys and 584 girls, a total of 1,196 pupils. The attendance for the first month averaged 98 per cent. The trustee officer, Mrs. Ora Miller, is doing very faithful work. This is the first time in the history of the local public schools that they have had a record of over 98 per cent.

Mr. Gambles' three orchestras are practicing every week. Mr. Beale's school band has two rehearsals each week, one on Wednesday at 4 P. M. and the other on Friday at 4 P. M.

The football team is improving. Physical education is mandatory in the public schools of Pennsylvania. Competitive games have always proved to be the best means for physical exercise among the boys and girls.

An Internal Treatment For Piles (Hemorrhoids)

Gives absolute relief from all pain and suffering. Has never failed.

Many people have become dependent because they have been led to believe that their cure was hopeless and that there was no remedy for their case.

Go to your druggist and get an original bottle of Micro File Remedy, the discovery of a clever Ohio chemist, that taken internally, passes unchanged through the stomach and intestines, and thus reaches the source of the trouble. By its soothing healing antiseptic action, it first allays and then by direct contact with the ulcers and piles causes them to heal and disappear forever.

It positively cures you how speedily it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two or three days, even in cases that have resisted all previously known treatments. Truly wonderful results have been accomplished. It is one of the wonderful discoveries of recent years and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded.

IMPORTANT: What is known as itching piles are not piles in the true sense of the word, although this condition may accompany a true case of piles. For this condition Micro File Ointment has been prepared and in such cases it is not necessary to take the internal prescription.

THE OPEN HEARTH MANUFACTURE OF STEEL DESCRIBED

Furnace Like Ordinary Bake Oven But Is Vastly Different, a Glance Shows.

A FIERY BROTH INSIDE

Contents Not Unlike Melted Stick Candy but Intense Heat Makes It Impossible to Look at It Except Through Colored Glasses; Process.

Because of the wide interest in the strike of steel workers the National Geographic Society has issued two bulletins on the steel industry. The first, dealt with Bessemer steel; and the second one, based on a communication to the society, describes other production methods as follows:

"An open-hearth furnace looks a good deal like an ordinary bake-oven; but when one looks in through the water-cooled door, a vast difference appears. Instead of pans of fragrant, fat loaves of baking bread, there is an imposing pool of fiery liquid as bright as the filament of a high-power tungsten lamp, so dazzling that it can be examined with safety to the eyes only by those using colored glasses. Tinted here and there with streaks of soft blue and dainty pink, it looks like melted stick candy.

"In preparing a battery of open-hearth furnaces for a charge, finely ground dolomite is shoveled in first. This melts like glass and fills up all cracks and crevices caused by the powerful heat of the preceding charge. Then a little train rolls up before the battery, and an electric crane dumps box after box of scrap metal from the cars into the furnace. Off some distance is a great steel tank lined with fire-brick and full of liquid pig metal.

"When the scrap has melted and the contents of the cauldron are cooked enough; when the impurities have been driven out and tumbled away, the fiery broth is 'seasoned,' as it were, with the proper amount of carbon, silicon, ferromanganese, tungsten, ferrosilicon, vanadium, or whatever is necessary to give the desired character to the resulting steel.

"Then comes the tapping of the furnace. An electric crane lifts a great ladle into position, a workman jams a crowbar through a clay-plugged hole at the base, and out flows the frenzied stream into the ladle. The slag rises to the top like oil on water and overflows, gurgling on the outside of the ladle. Then the big crane picks up the ladle, swings it over to the pouring platform, where it in its turn is tapped and its purified fluid run off into molds.

"Great care has to be taken in handling these ladles, for the presence of a few drops of moisture when the hot metal is poured into one might cause an explosion and loss of life. Just before they receive the molten metal the ladles are heated nearly white hot in order that the steel or iron may not chill in them.

"As fast as they are filled the ladles are swung out over the ingot molds and the liquid steel is run into them and allowed to cool and take its solid form. It is as if water were poured into molds and set in a refrigerating machine to freeze into blocks of ice. The only difference is that the 'freezing' point of steel is away above the boiling point of water.

"There are two other important types of steel furnaces—the crucible furnace and the electric furnace. In both of them the idea is to keep all harmful gas and other impurities out and, to regulate the addition of alloys and oxygen destroyers to a steady. In a crucible furnace the metal is placed in graphite clay pots, covers are put over them, and the pots subjected to great heat. Silica is gradually absorbed out of the clay in the pots and transformed into silicon by coming into contact with the carbon in the steel. The silicon in its turn absorbs the oxygen and thus quells the frothing, foaming contents of the kettle.

"The electric furnace acts in much the same way, its heat being so pure that there is no necessity of putting the steel in covered pots to keep out gas and other impurities. An electric arc, established between huge electrodes and the surface of the slag, produces the heat in such a furnace. By varying the materials used in the formation of the slag any impurities can be wadded off and the glowing steel left as pure as crystal. The alloys are then mixed with the steel and it is made fit for any use desired. It is then drawn off into ladles and poured into ingot molds, where it hardens, ready to be worked into those things that constitute the fast word in 'fine steel'.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE SMITHFIELD POST OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

Demand Same Enforcement of the Laws as They as Soldiers Were Required to Observe in Their Service.

Amesbury, N. H., Oct. 2.—The resolutions of the Smithfield post of the American Legion, passed at the recent primary election, the Smithfield post of the American Legion, has passed resolutions declaring the "violations of the election laws as great a menace to our form of government as was the Imperial government of Germany." Copies of the resolution have been sent to each of the judges of the county courts, county detectives and district attorney and the newspapers.

Directing attention to the fact "the members of the American Legion of Smithfield are men who have served in the army for the purpose of destroying the Imperial German Government and preserving our own free institutions," the resolutions "demand that you in your high official position use the same promptness energy and courage in the punishment of this crime, the preservation of the purity of the ballot, and the enforcement of the laws of the state as was expected and required of us in the military service one year ago. For we believe that the soldier who was expected to die for his country if need be, has a right to expect an honest and efficient government in the county in which he lives."

The resolutions bear the signature of H. B. Guther, president, and E. L. Morgan, secretary, of the Smithfield post.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Discoverer Tells Druggists Not to Take a Cent of Anyone's Money Unless Allergic Completely Banned All Remedies of Pain and Twinges.

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work. He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

His freely gave his discovery to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. Connellsville Drug Company has been appointed agent for Allen's in this vicinity with the understanding that they will freely return the purchase money to all who state they received no benefit.—Adv.

LIMIT ALIENS

To 5 Per Cent of Those Here Is the Purpose of New Immigration Bill

A bill introduced by Senator Dillingham, of Vermont, former chairman of the immigration committee and head of the United States immigration commission, would limit the number of aliens of any nationality admitted to five per cent of the number of that nationality already here; restriction not to apply to immigrants, who are natives of countries in western hemisphere.

The bill would allow the secretary of labor to admit aliens in excess of maximum number, where justifiable as a measure of humanity and provides for repeal of all special laws directly or indirectly relating to immigration from China, Japan, and other Oriental countries, including the Chinese exclusion law.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I tried something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no loss of time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 5227 Kensington Avenue, Kansas City, Mo., I will send out this notice and show it to any whom you are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

HE PAID BY CHECK

And so He Didn't Have to Pay His Taxes Twice.

A man in Pittsburgh mailed a check to the collector for his 1917 income tax. Many months after, payment was demanded for the same tax. The man had no receipt but he had the paid check with the collector's endorsement, and that paid check saved him a good many dollars. Just an instance of the wisdom of paying by check. Simple Home Remedy

Advised For Rose And Hay Fever

Anyone Can Make a Pint For Trifling Sum and Used in Time May Prevent Annual Attack

"No matter how severe your yearly attack be, no matter how distressing or humiliating—its intensity can be reduced to a harmless, mildness."

says a Kentucky druggist who believes from what he has seen that this simple home made remedy is a most important discovery.

He has seen the most severe and apparently unquenchable cases reduced to what might be called a mild cold in twenty-four hours.

In many cases where the patient started treatment a week or ten days before the expected attack the unwelcome yearly visitor failed to appear with anything like its usual intensity. People who want to try this new treatment can make a pint in a few minutes.

Four one ounce of Mentholated Arsenic into a pint bottle then fill the bottle with water that has been boiled. Gargle daily as directed and sniff or spray the nostrils twice daily.

That's all there is to the treatment which so many sufferers have found to be a true friend.

Mentholated Arsenic is one ounce vials is dispensed by all the better pharmacies.

Easier Now Than Later.
It is easier to break up a cold or check a cough now than it will be later. Persistent, bronchial coughs that "hang on" all winter pave the way for serious throat and lung diseases. L. W. This reliable family medicine for the relief of coughs, colds, croup, hoarseness, etc., contains no opiates. Children like it. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

CHAPTER I.

Claire.

I've always thought this adventure might credibly have happened to anybody else but me. Since it did happen to me I've come to the incredible conclusion that it's your staid, proper spinster who gets into some of the bluest adventures, only the world, just because of the bred-in-the-bone propriety of the people involved, never hears about the adventures.

Ann Preswick and I had spent the summer casually roving through Holland and Belgium, accompanied by two large suitcases, a bunch of extra soft lead pencils—mine—and a large paint-box and a white umbrella—Ann's—searching such adventures, literary and artistic, as two rather staid and prosaic women would be likely to find, which adventures we hoped to convert into cash through the American magazines.

At the end of three months Ann thought she saw two real live books as the offspring of our joint labors, so with my typewriter I went down to Vervay for the winter to work. However, I had hardly found myself nicely settled and "Belgian Eyways" sporting along when I was called for to come home, on family business.

While I was having the porter buy my Paris ticket for me a lady's card was brought to my room by the proprietor himself, telling me that the madame below stairs was the highly respected principal of a young ladies' school.

The madame turned out to be a pudgy, self-important person, speaking voluble and understandable English, who dived without waste of opportunity into her reason for visiting me: one of the young ladies of her school had just been telegraphed by monsieur le pere to meet him in Paris in the morning and must go up by the night train—of a necessity, mademoiselle must be chaperoned upon the journey—and madame had elected me to the privilege of doing it.

"That is something I never do, madame—chaperon strange young ladies."

"Madame—if you please—one moment. See the message of the father." She pulled out a long telegram in French. "You see—he goes to America at once with his daughter. She must be in Paris in the morning—must you comprehend?"

"Madame, you really must excuse me and allow me to say bonjour. I never chaperon strange young ladies."

With that I sailed off upstairs as fast as my legs could carry me. After what I'd said to madame and the way I'd treated her it never occurred to me that she'd laugh at my refusal. But it's what she did. She simply brought the child to the station and put her in my hands. And I saw a pair of beautiful big round eyes and a pair of beautiful big braids behind—I'd seen the braids the moment I entered the station and before madame had discovered me—and a charming, charming little creature about fifteen, in short frocks, and she put her little exquisitely gloved hand in mine and said, "Oh, do let me go with you! I'll not cause you a bit of trouble. You make me feel so safe and I'm so scared."

The last came out with a little gulp, and, silly old thing that I am about children of just that age—where childhood's world is closing them out of its innumerable protections and womanhood is opening the door to the world of straying feet—I said, "Come on, my dear," and put my arm around her, and away we went.

Claire—she asked me to call her by her first name—was as good as her word. She didn't make me the least trouble and she saved me a great deal at the frontier, for she spoke both French and German fluently—which I don't—and when a dingy, villainous-looking customs official viscerated our compartment I was only too thankful I heard her say, "C'est ma mere," and why she should be telling them about her mother I couldn't make out. So I asked her.

The child blushed furiously and took my hand.

"Don't be angry with me, please. The man insisted on knowing who you were and I told him you were my mother."

And actually—that will show you the old softy I am and the way I'd fallen in love with the little thing—I wished it were true.

"I was so frightened," she went on, "that I hardly knew what to do. So I told him—I told him that—I was red as a rose now—I told him that you were the duchess de Pauncerfort—English, you know—and were traveling incognito. That's why they were all so civil."

"Why, my dear child," I expostulated, for I do hate unnecessary lies. "I don't think all that was called for. I had nothing the officers might not have seen in welcome."

She hung her head and admitted, "I was afraid you wouldn't like it, but papa told me what to say in order to escape indignity. You see there are so many Russian spies passing the frontier—some very important ones have been escaping with papers and they are mostly women."

She seemed reticent about her father, saying he traveled most of the time and was in the diplomatic service and that she and her mother lived in Paris. But last September her dear grandpa had had a stroke and her mother had to rush to America to a place called California, and she—Claire—was sent for safekeeping to madame's school.

Monsieur le pere met us at the station. Claire saw him in the distance, and with a cry of joy skinned along the platform and into his arms. I came up sedately, just as her father set her down, and was introduced and thanked.

Monsieur de Ravenel had an air and a way, and the way was as convincing as the air. He gave me all the gratitude for the favor rendered that it was worth—and I thought rather more, and then immediately insisted on my breakfasting with them.

Where monsieur took us I don't to this day know, but it was an expensive, obsequious place and he seemed to be at home there.

"It was when I was biting into my second roll that monsieur came out plop—no less than that I was to take Claire on the steamer with me and let her share my stateroom!"

Oh, it was more than a favor he was asking—madame and himself and Claire would be forever in my debt. He himself had expected to sail in two days and join madame in New York, but he was "recalled to court" (what court he didn't trouble to tell me), and he could neither take Claire with him nor yet leave her alone in Paris. Madame de Ravenel would be awaiting her child in New York hence if I could continue to keep the girl under my so estimable care until I delivered her on the other side monsieur would retain for me an everlasting gratitude.

Claire started and exclaimed, "Papa!" when she heard he was not sailing, and was meaning to send her on alone, but he gave her a hard look and a sharp sentence in what sounded German, but I've since learned was a dialect I couldn't be supposed to understand. All I got of it was a stern, "Da must," which silenced the girl completely.

It was that—the callous rudeness toward me, though at the moment he was in the very net of asking a great favor—that nailed my resolution to have nothing whatever to do with his affairs. I replied, the moment I got the chance, "It is quite impossible, monsieur. I never share a stateroom with anyone."

"Ah, madame—a child—a little child alone, alone," he looked at me reproachfully. "What shall she make alone on that long voyage? And coming to your customs house in New York—I hear zat zey are terrible—zat ladies receive indignities beyond belief—being stripped to ze skin to be searched by monsters in human form."

I stared up at this—our customs house isn't anything to give one particular pride, but it's nothing indecent and I told him very flatly it was not so.

In an instant of unreserve I mentioned that I had a fourth cousin in the service who always met me and saw that I got through—he was in charge of the inspector who examined baggage on the line I always took.

"Ah, how excellent it would be for Claire to accompany you," monsieur exclaimed with feeling. "All her anxiety would be set at rest by your so estimable cousin. Surely you will not refuse her to share your stateroom?"

I was exasperated again in a minute. I've got Quaker blood in me, and come from a people whose yea is yea and whose nay means "that settles it." I snipped out that my stateroom was too small even for one, in comfort.

"But I shall most gladly engage ze largest on board for you and my daughter," he cried, brightening. "Indeed it is no more zan right zat I pay ze entire passage."

Claire started and turned furiously red. Child as she was, she had a breeding and a delicacy of feeling that her father lacked. As for me, my eyes were popping. I threw my napkin on the table and let this icicle slide off my tongue: "Monsieur, I am perfectly able to pay my way through the world without the help of strangers, and with that I rose, adding, "I must say farewell to you and your daughter. I have many things to attend to and my friends are expecting me."

Monsieur and Claire immediately followed my example in rising, monsieur calling the garçon to bring the bill and telling Claire to go with me to the saloon. As she was leaving he called her back for another communication not meant for me to understand. She, poor child, wasn't equal to the task he set, for she blurted out, very red in the face, "Papa wants me to beg you to take me with you—" and then stopped and looked at the floor, for the smile she saw in my face.

"I understand just how you feel, my dear," I said gently. "You're too beautifully well bred to urge the granting of a favor that has been and must be refused."

"Oh, how did you know how I felt?" she gulped, looking up with her big eyes relieved of their embarrassment. "It's just how I felt, and I'm ashamed that—she bit her lip and kept back what she was going to say—that her father had asked it—and said, artlessly, "I love you."

She put up her face and we kissed. That one little moment—the feeling that she was the real thing—kept me believing in her later in spite of everything, and when I couldn't believe in her at all—except as the finished accomplice in a detestable crime.

Monsieur le pere hurried in. A glance quite plainly passed between them in which she told him it was no use. Then he said the carriages were outside and he saw me into one and gave the driver the name of the hotel I told him, and I was off in a cloud of adieux and bows and hand-waves and whip-cracks and was presently at my hotel.

CHAPTER II.

The Slipper.

Ann was waiting for me at the hotel. While I unpacked and washed she sat on the bed and regaled me with the news. "Who do you think turned up from home last week? You'll never guess. Billy Rivers. And he's just the dearest ever!"

Now, ages upon ages ago Billy Rivers had gone to school to me in the year of my initiation into the sacred mysteries of pedagogy in North Tonawanda, and I rather think now that I see things from the middle-aged point of view—that Billy taught me more than I taught him. He had been in New York now for some little time, since his graduation—a cab reporter and one of the big dailies.

"What's Billy doing over here?"

THE WORLD THINKS ALONG NEW LINES SAYS THE EXPERT

Sensational Theory Advanced by Ten-Herbs Expert in a Recent Interview.

"The discovery of Ten-Herbs," said the Ten-Herbs expert, who has his headquarters at the McCullough Drug Co. store, corner of Penn. and Federal streets, in Pittsburgh, which is the true blood builder, has set the world to thinking along entirely new lines. "It is now realized that millions of people who do not suffer from any particular disease are sub-normal in their general health and vital power, and that this run-down condition is due to weak or impoverished blood, caused usually by food fermentation. The only logical conclusion which can be drawn from the strengthening effect of Ten-Herbs, is that the blood is the life, the strength and the health of every organ, nerve and muscle of the human body."

"People of weak blood, who are nervous and debilitated, who look upon life as a care and a burden, and that Ten-Herbs brings back to them the joy of living, the strength and courage to meet the world face to face, the power to laugh at trouble and to disregard petty annoyances."

"By strengthening the blood, Ten-Herbs confers strength and endurance to the muscular system and natural activity to all the organs of the body by causing the food to digest and assimilate perfectly."

"If your vital organs—for example your stomach—are constantly going out of order, if you are persistently taking medicine for this ailment and that, if you do not feel as well, active and vigorous at one of your years might expect—in other words, if you are not up to the standard of vigorous health, you may be sure that the organs of your body are weak, and that you should take Ten-Herbs."

Ten-Herbs is sold in Connelville at the Connelville Drug Co's Store. Adv.

The Devil's Own

A Romance of the Blackhawk War

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Contraband," "Sons of the Irish Boy," "When Wilderness Was King," etc.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY IRWIN MYERS

Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co.

The fire, by this time blazing brightly, gave us a full view of the entire dismantled interior. The cabin was a complete wreck, the roof practically all gone and the upper logs of the sides either fallen within or dangling in threat. Clearly enough it had been the sudden plunge of heavy timbers and the dislodgment of those upper logs which accounted for this invasion of death. There were dead there—plunged by bullets and branded by fello stocks, but the many had met their fate under the avalanche of logs, and amid the burning glare of exploding powder.

Only between armed warriors and sections of fallen roof could we move at all, and beneath the network of this entanglement the majority of the bodies lay, crushed and mangled. I saw Kirby, free from his bonds but dead beneath a heavy beam. His face was toward us and the floor of flame revealed a dark spot on his forehead—his life had never been crushed out by that plunging timber which pinned him there; it had been ended by a bullet. My eyes sought hers, in swift memory of my last order and she must have read my thought.

"No," she said, "not that, Steven. It was the boy who shot him. Oh, please, can we not go? There is light already in the sky overhead—see. Take me away from here—anywhere, on—side."

"To a moment: all these surely are dead, beyond our aid, and yet we must not depart footless. We know not how far it still may be to Ottawa."

Wait, while I search for the things we need."

"Not alone; I must be where I can touch you. Try to understand. Oh, you do not know those hours I have spent in agony—I have died a thousand deaths since that sun went down."

"You were conscious—all night long?"

"Conscious? Yes, and unhurt, yet, imprisoned helpless beneath those two logs yonder, saved only by that overturned bench. Else, poor thing, never knew how death came. It was so swift, but I lay there, with never a dream that you lived. There were groans at first and cries. Some Indians crept in through the door and dragged out a few who lived. But with the coming of darkness all sound ceased and such silence was even more dreadful than the calls for help. Oh, I cannot tell you," and she clung to me, her voice breaking. "I dared not move for hours, and then, when I did try, found I could not, that I was held fast. Only for a knife in the hands of a dead savage, which I managed to secure, I could never have freed myself. And oh the unspeakable horror of creeping in the darkness among those bodies. I knew where the fireplace must be; that there might be live coals there still. I had to have light; I had to know if you were dead."

"Don't think about it any more, dear heart," I urged. "Yes, we can go now—nothing else holds us here."

We crept out through the door, underneath a mass of debris, into the gray of the dawn. Beyond a little grove we found some horses browsing in the deep grass; they were those that had brought us from Yellow Banks, and whinnied a greeting as we drew near. Two of them were fit to ride and the other's followed, limping along behind.

A half mile up the valley we came to a beaten trail, running straight across from bluff to bluff, and disappearing into the prairie beyond, heading directly toward the sunrise. We stopped and looked back for the first time. There on the side of the slope, under the shade of the big tree, stood the cabin. Only for the wreck of the roof it spoke no message of the tragedy within. The sun's rays gilded it, and the smoke from its chimney seemed a beckoning welcome. I reached out and took her hand, and our eyes met in understanding. What I whispered need not be told, and when we again rode forward, it was upon the trail to Ottawa.

[THE END]

REGION IN BETTER AND STRONGER POSITION THAN HAD BEEN EXPECTED

Demoralization and Tie-Up Did Not Materialize As Was Feared.

LOSS ONLY 28 PER CENT

As compared with the preceding week; Small Amount of Stranding Coke and Steady Movement of Coal Agreeable Surprises; Wise Policy.

From The Weekly Courier.

At the end of the first ten days of the strike among the day laborers at the steel plants, the Connellsville coke region finds itself in a very much better and stronger position than it was thought would be possible when the walkout was inaugurated. The almost complete demoralization of the trade, and more or less complete tie-up of the region, which the more timid and doubting feared would come, operation was less severely affected than was thought it would be. There was a slowing down all around; 440 ovens were blown out, others banked, the running time reduced to five, four, and in some cases, three days. But with all the restrictive measures that were applied there was a curtailment of only 72,000 tons, or about 28 per cent, in the production.

There were some agreeable surprises during the week. One that the number of cars of standing coke although large, was less than it was believed would follow the first attempt to gauge production to reduced demand. The other was the dispatch with which the region is being cleared of coal cars as fast as loaded. Coke continues to go to the markets, export trade having taken on larger proportions and some furnaces with idle by-product ovens having taken better coke.

Coke production was 188,000 tons, perhaps 15,000 tons of which found its destination on the yards at seven plants, largely those of the furnace interests. There is no market, in the ordinary sense of the term, demand being slight with small sales at $3.35 to $4.00 for spot furnace.

For the week ending Saturday, September 27, was 188,120 tons, contributed by the two districts as follows: Connellsville, 106,686, a decrease of 52,334 tons; Lower Connellsville, 79,434, a decrease of 20,347 tons, or a total decrease of 72,681 tons. By interests the production was: Furnace, 97,824, a decrease of 53,105 tons; merchant, 88,296, a decrease of 13,576 tons. Shipments of coke were perhaps 15,000 tons less than production, a number of plants, chiefly furnace, stocking the surplus on their yards.

In the oven changes the furnace interests blew out 34; merchants, 382, or a total of 446. Further reduction is taking place this week, particularly at the furnace oven plants, where a short working schedule is also being observed, some plants making five, some four, and others but three days. Merchant plants are making rather better average time.

These conditions prove a number of things, in relation to the strike, which 10 days ago were matters of more or less speculation. In the first place, the fact that coke production has been only partially reduced, instead of virtually stopped, proves that the iron and steel industry has not been "paralyzed" to the extent contemplated by Syndicalist Foster and his "militant minority." In the second place, the policy of the coke producers in meeting the situation with decision and by vigorously restrictive measures, has again demonstrated its wisdom and effectiveness. A firm grip is being maintained which is serving to keep the trade on an even keel and thereby insure a reasonably safe voyage through the industrial gale, which already shows signs of abating.

It was to be expected that the region could not immediately adapt itself to the disturbed order, and that rather more coke would be produced for several days, perhaps a week or longer, than the market could absorb. That the surplus has been much less than was expected is one of the agreeable surprises of the week. There are, it is well known, a number of cars of coke standing on sidings throughout the region, but these do not in all cases represent coke without destination. A very considerable part of them contain coke for furnaces which have requested delay in forwarding, until the situation clears somewhat, rather than offer it on the market at this time. As noted last week considerable coke which had been diverted from former markets, is finding new outlets. Export trade has taken on larger proportions, it being estimated that at least 25 cars are moving to Atlantic ports per week. Again, furnaces whose by-product plants are closed down are taking beehive coke in certain quantities whereas they formerly took none. Some stocking of coke is being done by furnaces which depended largely if not altogether upon the Connellsville region.

Another encouraging development is that the region is being daily cleared of by-product and steam coal as fast as loaded. Much less is going to by-product coke plants than two days ago, but there has been a very large increase in movement to the lakes and to Canada. Coal car supply is still unsatisfactory, the distribution ranging around 50 per cent some days; on others even less.

The estimated production of coke

COKE TRADE SUMMARY.

The Connellsville region did rather better than was expected in meeting the situation arising from the partial strike in the steel industry. Instead of the complete demoralization of the trade, and tie-up of the region, which some of the more timid and doubting feared would come, operation was less severely affected than was thought it would be. There was a slowing down all around; 440 ovens were blown out, others banked, the running time reduced to five, four, and in some cases, three days. But with all the restrictive measures that were applied there was a curtailment of only 72,000 tons, or about 28 per cent, in the production.

There were some agreeable surprises during the week. One that the number of cars of standing coke although large, was less than it was believed would follow the first attempt to gauge production to reduced demand. The other was the dispatch with which the region is being cleared of coal cars as fast as loaded. Coke continues to go to the markets, export trade having taken on larger proportions and some furnaces with idle by-product ovens having taken better coke.

Coke production was 188,000 tons, perhaps 15,000 tons of which found its destination on the yards at seven plants, largely those of the furnace interests. There is no market, in the ordinary sense of the term, demand being slight with small sales at $3.35 to $4.00 for spot furnace.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

IF BACK HURTS—blindings—tawies—Bat Less Meat if Kidneys Feel Like Lead or Bladder Bothers.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you get an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

Cost of Strikes in Kansas. From April 16, 1916, to December 31, 1918, there were 364 strikes at individual mines in Kansas, costing the miners themselves $1,006,454.41, and netting them the paltry sum of $733.34.

SIGNS OF INFLUENZA

GET THIS OUT

The usual symptoms are chills, headaches, pains in the back, soreness or stiffness in joints and muscles—the mucous membranes of the respiratory tract from the nose to the air cells of the lungs may be regarded as the seat of the Influenza bacilli. In the simple form, the disease usually starts with coryza (cold in the head) presenting the features of an acute catarrh with fever, with perhaps rather more prostration and debility than is usual. In other cases after the catarrhal symptoms, bronchitis occurs. The fever increases, perhaps delirium and much prostration. The more grave condition being, bronchitis, pleurisy and pneumonia.

The best way to combat influenza is to take all possible measures of precaution against it; strictly observe all warnings issued by Physicians or Health Departments; observe all measures of sanitation; eat, sleep and exercise regularly; take good care of the nose and throat—the importance of this measure is great in keeping the membranes of the air passages clean and healthy; the contraction of any germ disease is less probable.

Quick action and prompt measures of treatment should be given coughs, colds, sore throats, especially head colds or nasal catarrh, the idea being to relieve these minor conditions before they have a chance to develop.

There is nothing easier or more pleasant to use as a preventative, than Geo. Wormwood Balm—And, as a treatment in coughs, colds, sore throats, bronchitis, head colds or nasal catarrh, it gives instant relief. During the last epidemic, many Physicians used it regularly with grateful results. Geo. Wormwood Balm can be used either externally, internally or both according to conditions.

Externally—When applied directly to the affected parts quickly penetrates, reducing inflammation, scatters congestion, soothes, heals and allays the pain. Internally—Geo. Wormwood Balm is used as a steam—that is, the soothing, healing and antiseptic vapors are inhaled directly into the air passages of the nose and throat. This pleasant aromatic treatment, brings prompt relief from all soreness and quickly cleans out the head and nostrils. In this way affording an excellent means of prevention besides its great value as a treatment in conditions arising from coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, sore throat, hoarseness, loss of voice and nasal catarrh.

Before you purchase Geo. Wormwood Balm ask your doctor what he thinks of the value of the ingredients contained in this preparation which are Camphor, Benzoin, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Pine Needles, Wintergreen, Wormwood and Oregon. Then do as he says. A. A. Clarke, J. C. Moore, C. Roy Hessel or any good druggist can supply you at small cost.—Adv.

GERMANY BUYS

American Coal to Use in Making Goods for the Export Trade.

A press dispatch from Berlin says it is reported there that Hugo Stinnes, who before the war was one of the leading coal producers in Germany, has "concluded arrangements for a vast supply of the best American coal."

This coal, it is stated, will be brought to Germany for the use of industries turning out manufactured wares for the export trade. German financiers and business men are said to be laying plans for re-establishing themselves in various foreign markets, and this program necessitates the importation of coal owing to the disorganized state of the mining industry in that country. According to the report in question, the American coal contracted for by Hugo Stinnes will cost about 470 marks per ton delivered at a German port.

An Agreeable Surprise.

"About three years ago when I was suffering from a severe cold on my lungs and coughed most of the time night and day, I tried a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and was surprised at the promptness with which it gave me relief," writes Mrs. James Brown, Clark Mills, N. Y. Many another has been surprised and benefited from the prompt relief afforded by this remedy.—Adv.

Plaids to the Fore Again

Maybe it is due to the gallantry of "The Ladies from Hell"—as the Germans called the Highlanders who fought them so bravely—that the season finds a greater demand than ever for plaids, but more than likely it is because the combinations in colorings, the style of the checks and bars and the extremely good weight and weave of the woolens appeal to the average woman's sense of good taste and good value.

Every clan has its own plaid, but there never were as many clans as there are plaids this year for the weavers have evolved new styles and combinations which were never found in kilts but which are meeting with great favor for separate skirts and dresses.

Most popular among the plaids are those in which the blues, greens, browns, dark reds, black and white predominate with various other colors crossing and crosscrossing in various styles and patterns. INTEREST IN STEEL MARKET GIVES WAY TO WINNING THE STRIKE

Efforts Have the Sympathy and Cooperation of Customers: Break in the Tie-Up Will Come Later.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows:

The main thing being to win the strike, the steel producing trade has taken no interest in the market. They have had the strongest possible feeling of sympathy and cooperation on the part of their customers, who are not importuning them for deliveries, and only communicate to the extent of expressing sympathy or asking, as a matter of information, what deliveries may be expected.

The strike is settled as an issue. It has not succeeded. The last came in the Monongahela and Shenango valleys, where the strikers gained for the first two or three days of the strike, since when employment has steadily although slowly increased. The Pittsburgh district is not operating full, but it is operating amply well enough to cause the strike to break where it is strongest, in Cleveland, the Mahoning Valley and the Wheeling district, where the tie-up is practically complete. No break at those points has occurred thus far and there may be none for several days, possibly a fortnight or longer, but it is certain that eventually the break will come, for the strike cannot possibly spread. It had that opportunity in the first two or three days and made all the use of the opportunity that could be made.

The strike has been purely one of common labor, with the exception of some crummen and a few other skilled men and it has been chiefly of foreign born common labor. These unlettered foreigners did not strike because they are particularly disposed to strike or because they had any peculiar grievance. They struck because it was to them that the Bolshevik preachings of the agitators appealed.

A considerable tonnage of pig iron and steel production is being lost but by comparison with the great issue that is being fought the loss is regarded as of very small consequence.
